¹The Ray O'Hara Award requires the submission of a series of articles that exhibits a perspective that respects the unique role of The Michigan Daily as the students' newspaper, the significance of athletes to the University of Michigan, and the relationships among the student athlete, the University and the student body.

²The Class of 1998 Scholarship requires a statement from the applicant regarding future career interests.

³The Ken Fink Award requires the applicant to submit up to three photos or photo stories taken for the Daily during the past year.

I am currently on the staff of one of the publications under the umbrella of the University of Michigan Board for Student Publications and am applying for one of the Stanford Lipsey Endowed Scholarships. I understand that in the process of gathering the information to determine the scholarship awardees, the Board may contact the University's Office of Financial Aid.
